How to connect xfinity dvr to tv

1 Make sure that you have cable installed. If a Comcast representative didn't come to your house to install cable, you'll need to call Comcast and request the installation. If you call Comcast, be sure to have your account information and ID on-hand. 2 Confirm that you have the correct cables. If your TV is an HDTV, you can use an HDMI cable to connect your Comcast box to your TV; if not, you'll need standard A/V cables (the red, yellow, and white cables) to connect the box to your TV. The cable box should come with A/V cables. You can usually buy HDMI cables for under $15 online or in a tech store. Advertisement 3 Turn off and unplug your TV. Press your TV's "Power" button (or the "Power" button on the TV's remote), then remove the plug from the back of the TV. Leave the TV's power cable plugged into the wall during the setup process. 4 Move your TV away from the wall if possible. You'll need plenty of space to hook up the cable box, so move your TV and/or entertainment center a foot or two away from the wall. This should give you enough room to attach the cable box without bending any wires. 5 Place the cable box near the back of the TV. It's good to have a general idea of where the cable box will go before you start plugging in wires, so make sure the box is roughly where you want it before continuing. 6 Face the back of the box. You should see several slots and connectors in the back; this is where you'll plug in all of the necessary cables. You can now proceed to connecting the cable box to your cable service and TV. Advertisement 1 Attach the Comcast coaxial cable to the box. Find the cable that Comcast installed—it will usually be sticking out of the floor or the wall behind your TV—and plug it into the metal coaxial input in the back of the cable box, then screw the connector clockwise to tighten it. The cable's end has an attachment resembling a needle in the middle of it. Your cable box should have a coaxial cable included. If Comcast didn't install a cable for you, you can attach the other end of this cable to the coaxial input in the wall. 2 Plug in one end of the HDMI cable. It goes in the wide, narrow port in the back of the cable box. On most Comcast cable boxes, the HDMI port is either in the bottom-right corner of the box or at the bottom of the box's back.[1] If you're using A/V cables instead, plug each cable into the same-colored port on the back of the box (e.g., plug the yellow cable into the yellow input). 3 Plug the other end of the HDMI cable into the TV. Find your preferred HDMI port on your TV, then attach the cable box to the port in question. If you have a receiver with multiple HDMI ports plugged into your TV, you can plug your cable box's HDMI cable into the receiver instead. If you're using A/V cables instead, plug the cables into the same-colored ports on the back of your TV. 4 Attach the power cable to a power source. Plug the power cable into a wall outlet or power strip. You should choose a power outlet close enough to the TV that you'll be able to place the box near the TV without stretching or bending any wires. 5 Plug the other end of the power cable into the cable box. You should see a circular power input on the back of the cable box; fit the end of the power cable into this input. This input is normally on the right-hand side of the box. 6 Plug back in your TV and turn it on. Doing so will also turn on your Comcast cable box, though you may have to wait several minutes before the box is fully on. 7 Change your TV's input if necessary. Press the "Input" or "Source" button on your TV or remote to switch to the input (e.g., HDMI 1) into which you plugged your Comcast box. 8 Set up your Comcast remote. Insert the batteries into your remote, then proceed with connecting it to your TV and cable box.[2] Cable box and remote instructions vary from model to model, so consult your remote's manual for instructions on synchronizing the remote with your TV and cable box. 9 Activate your cable box. Once your cable box has been connected, all that's left to do is activate the service. To start this process, you can call Comcast at 1-855-652-3446, or you can go to the activation website at xfinity.com/activate and sign in. Advertisement Add New Question Question How can I add a DVD player to my cable box? Your cable box most likely doesn't have an input for DVD; you'll have to add it directly to your TV. Question What do I do if I get a "No signal" when hooking up the HD cable box? Find the right input by pressing the input/source/AV button on your original TV remote. Question Everything is hooked up right but there is no sound, what should I do? If you're using the cables that are red, white, and yellow, make sure that the red and white cables are in the correct left and right holes. If it's an HDMI cord, make sure that the cords on both ends are plugged in. Ensure that your TV isn't muted, and go into the TV settings to ensure that sound is set to go through the proper channel (HDMI/RCA). Question Can I connect my Comcast cable box to my laptop computer? Typically, laptops aren't able to receive and display HDMI or other inputs. If you want to watch cable with a computer, you will have to use a desktop computer with a monitor that has HDMI or cable input. Question What does "Your explorer setup is not authorized for use" mean? This most likely means that your TV service is not provisioned correctly, or in other words, the TV service is not programmed to be sent to your specific setup box correctly. Calling the cable provider is your best bet. Question What does it mean if I installed a new cable box, but my TV says there is no signal? This could be caused a number of reasons, but most likely you have a bad port, or the box isn't strong enough to intercept the signal. Question Why are some channels not full screen on my Comcast cable box? Your TV is where the screen size is controlled. Try to use the zoom feature on your TV. Question Define coaxial, A/V, etc. I had to stop and look up so many terms here, unlike with my Dummies books. Coaxial is a cable like a clothes line with a strand of solid copper running through it being a feed - line from one end to the other end. Usually, black plastic, now inside there is a shield being like tinfoil wrapped around this copper wire below that is a white tube plastic that holds the wire into place. A/V is Audio/Video (both are signals to and from both devices). Question What channel should my TV be on? None. This article describes using A/V or HDMI cables. As stated in step 7, you may need to switch to a different input source using your remote or a menu on your TV. Question What does the message "Component" mean? TV turns on, then after I see the message it turns off. It means you have Component set as the input source. If it turns off, you either have nothing connected to the component jacks, or the device that is connected is turned off. Show more answers Ask a Question Advertisement Thanks! Advertisement Thanks! Watching television is a popular pastime. Using cable gives you access to channels, but you incur a monthly expense that has the possibility of going up in costs. There are other options for enjoying your favorite shows. Get free channels with a few TV hacks offering an alternative to cable.HDTV AntennaGone are the days of the old-timey V-shaped antenna that rested on top of a television set. Today's high-definition (HDTV) antenna are more fine-tuned for clearer reception and stronger signals. Use online guides to walk you through which channels you'd get based on the type of high-definition antenna. You enter your location, and you'll see the color-coded list of available channels based on the antenna. Purchase your HDTV antenna online or at a local electronics store. You'll have the cost of the antenna but no further charges.Indoor AntennaUse an indoor antenna to pick up nearby signals. These are simple to install by plugging the antenna into a receiver and mounting the receiver near a window. A directional antenna points in one direction. It can be used when a definitive line connects the antenna to a cell tower. Prices are reasonable, and you can find an indoor antenna with a 50-mile signal range.Outside AntennaOutdoor antennas are often used in remote locations to pick up signals with a longer range. They are usually mounted on top of a roof to reduce the likelihood of signal obstructions due to trees and buildings. Since the installation involves getting on the roof, this type of antenna can be a little more difficult to install. An omnidirectional antenna picks up signals in several different directions, instead of one like the directional antenna. Look for an 80-mile range for areas with cell towers located further away.Streaming ServicesResearch the Internet to find free, legal streaming services. You can also pay small monthly fees for memberships or subscriptions to other streaming services. The fees are usually substantially less than cable bills. Create an account and follow set-up instructions to start the streaming program. Most allow you to cancel at any time. These streaming services give you access to movies, documentaries, current TV shows and reruns of old classics. You miss the commercial interruptions.Watch OnlineYou can watch TV online. Visit the website of one of your favorite shows. Many network channels have an option to watch an episode online for free. You'll need a computer or mobile device and an Internet connection. If you prefer to watch the show on your television screen, get a cable to connect your computer to the TV. The cable allows you to stream the shows to watch on a bigger screen.
